

Satellite

Lyrics by Rose Ellis

Hear this heavy rain pour, falling out of sadness that is mingled into madness
You are hardly aware that I'm caught up in circles all around you
Each silly thing that I do, you never seem to care.

I'm spinning, spacing, stumbling

My heart just flips, gravity fails and the whole world trips
I'm constantly circling way up high, I'm a satellite.

While I'm spinning 'round I'm not winning your attention
You never even mentioned me flying 'round the moon
Are you blind to see?
Everything shatters; it doesn't seem to matter if the moon turns green.

I'm spinning, spacing, stumbling

My heart just flips, gravity fails and the whole world trips
I'm constantly circling way up high, I'm a satellite.

Leave me flying high, till' I'm falling out of heaven and suddenly you notice a satellite go by...
